

Says

EMPATHY MAP

Thinks

The nominations for all phases of the General Election should be submitted, which helps in graphical analysis.

Number of candidates contesting for Lok Sabha elections in India in 2019, by gender can be identified.

Need to calculate how many educated candidates contesting as compared to previous years.

By separating the list by allotments, it creates a detailed report on the specificity.

State wise the parties and its representatives should be mentioned with poll wards.

Should verify recognised state parties, together, fielded 1.53 candidates per constituency.

A Quantitative Analysis Of Candidates In The 2019 Lok Sabha Elections

The seven national parties together fielded 2.69 candidates per constituency is founded.

The Bharatiya Janata Party and Congress are contesting 435 and 420 seats respectively. In 373 seats they are in competition with each other.

Largest states are ones with more than 30 Parliamentary constituency seats which are identified.

The highest candidate representation are from the southern states.

By this analysis candidates from five national parties are contesting directly.

All states together have 249 seats in which 46% is of Lok Sabha is easily analysed.

Does

Feels

